

LOVE BEFORE PREGNANCY, HATRED DURING PREGNANCY AND BREAK UP AFTER PREGNANCY AMONG LOVERS

Relationship nowadays seems to be something else than it used to be in the days of our forefathers. Unlike the good old days, it is now characterized by so much dramatic, uncommon and unprecedented events that give birth to hatred for both parties involved which viciously end up in break-up. The concern and question around this modern days phenomenon is "why is it mostly the case that lovers initially develop doting for each other before pregnancy and the moment pregnancy sneaks in they start hating each other, realising each other's flaws and capitalising on them thereby giving them the cause to take different positions and start making decisions that destroy the relationship gradually and after pregnancy it all ends up in break-up"? It looks like relationships these days are mere contracts.

I think one of the fundamental causes for breaking up after pregnancy is as a result of the fact that people in this generation are not living and working in conformity with God's word. We are required by God to get married before involving in sexual affairs not to speak of giving birth out of wed luck. This act of making love and giving birth out of wed luck was very uncommon to our forefathers which is apparently now like a fashion to this generation.

Also, it is a fact that women lose weight, shape and beauty as soon as they give birth, which means it is true that beauty fades away. And as a result of such, some men start losing interest in their partners based on the fact that they were moved at first sight by their facial beauty, physical structure and appearance. So mostly after giving birth, the relationship comes to an end, every body finds their way with the child or children being the only thing left between them because the elements of attraction could no longer be found in their partners.

Another factor that could be responsible for breaking up after pregnancy is the negative attitudes and behaviours of either one or both partners toward the other or each other, and that one of the two could not bear with the other, so for that reason break up occurs after pregnancy. Humans are naturally in the habit of covering up their negative attitudes especially when they are newly in love. There is a point in time when every man especially the ones that are in a serious relationship would want to tie the knot but sometimes some few but important things would cause a delay in achieving it. Nagging women usually lose beautiful relationships as a result of their nagging attitudes. Men hate it when their partners talk too much and unnecessarily especially during pregnancy, it irritates them so whenever they think of settling down with them, something would always remind them of their attitude as to whether they could bear with them on that as marriage is a lifetime thing not a day's job. This has led to many relationship break-ups and women don't show up their negative attitudes until they get into the middle of the relationship probably during pregnancy. Some men also don't put on their bad garments/robes when they want to win the heart of the woman of their dream, until probably after achieving their goal in the relationship and so they end up giving up on it which is also why we have more baby mamas and baby fathers than wives and husbands. If we could make conscious efforts to correct these mistakes there would be less of this issue in our society.
